High village and residential area, the Roucas-Blanc is located in the city center, between the Basilica of Notre Dame de la Garde and the Prado. The long road of Roucas-Blanc stretches from Endoume to the Corniche, with many houses on its ends. It is characterized by a very bourgeois habitat, made up of the old "summer houses" of the rich industrial families of Marseilles. Many ascents of stairs allow to reach different points of view from where one can see Our Lady of the Guard and its hill, the Corniche and the islands (castle of If, Frioul). "The Roucas-Blanc swarms with houses separated from each other by fences, gardens, bancaous, orchards and vegetable gardens. These houses are scattered to the right and to the left of roads, paths, crossroads and dead ends where one encounters each step with high walls and low doors ... "Alfred Saurel.
